“The Soul of Leadership”

As we approach the end of our first year anniversary as an agency, and we look forward to what year number two will bring, one thing stands out to be above all else. That one thing is the need for leadership at all levels throughout the agency. I don't mean management, I mean genuine leadership. And as we all know, leadership does not come from having a title, it comes from within, and it often comes at all levels of an organization. One does not have to be a manager to be a leader. So when I think about this need for our agency, I am referring to a very specific type of leadership – the soul of leadership.

Recently, a good friend of mine gave me a book by Deepak Chopra called The Soul of Leadership, and this book captures exactly what I think our agency needs. And here is the best part; I believe that we have these individuals within our agency now...in fact, you may be one of them and we just need to allow you to blossom, or as Deepak Chopra would say “unlock your potential for greatness.” In his book, Deepak Chopra describes leadership that is not leadership as we've traditionally defined it. According to that old definition, leadership belongs to the few. Instead, he describes how anyone and everyone has the potential to be an inspired leader. Inspired leadership is established in being, where there is no need to adopt a strategy for climbing to the top. As you unfold your potential for greatness, you unfold the same potential in others.

GVRA will only become better when more and more of our staff have the opportunity to unlock their potential for greatness. Just imagine what that would be like. Imagine leadership that is not about control and power, but true inspiration. Imagine what we could accomplish. It excites me to think about lies ahead and what we can become, but only if we as an agency allow everyone else to find their greatness, foster their talents, and give them such an opportunity as Deepak Chopra describes.

WOW! Let our second year be a year of discovering all the leadership souls that are waiting to be unleashed.

VR Region 5 Hosts GVRA Monthly Meeting

The GVRA Board continued its meetings commitment to across the state On Wednesday, June 12, 2013, the GVRA Board met in Athens for its monthly meeting. A number of critical items, including the plan for VR services for FY 2014, were approved by the Board.

Keith Horton has been instrumental in the formation and development of GVRA . To express appreciation for his service, the GVRA Board drafted its first resolution expressing appreciation to a GVRA staff member in the history of the organization. During his tenure, Keith made a significant strides to become a stand-alone agency. Deputy Director Horton was nominated by Governor Nathan Deal to become Commissioner of DHS effective July 1, 2013.

During May, the Board traveled to Columbus and experienced the Business Enterprise Program. The June meeting turned attention to the Vocational Rehabilitation Program. Region 5 Athens Unit hosted the meeting and did a magnificent job showcasing Athens and the state flagship academic institution, the University of Georgia.

With Executive Director Greg Schmiege recovering from surgery, Lynn Vellinga was named as the Interim Executive Director for GVRA. In addition to his current assignment at GVRA, Lynn serves as the Deputy Director for Georgia Department of Human Services.

Mr. Vellinga has over 32 years of experience in state government accounting and financial reporting. Prior to his employment at DSH, Vellinga served as the first State Accounting Officer in Georgia where he helped establish the newly created central accounting office.

Lynn will provide steady, proven leadership as Greg's health continues to improve.

It is official-Georgia Regents and Roosevelt Warm Springs have entered into an interagency agreement to operate the hospitals. Here, Board Chair Jim Defoor looks on as GVRA Executive Director signs the contract effective July 1, 2013.

Colleagues and friends, Executive Director Greg Schmiege surprised Keith Horton with the resolution from the Board. In addition, RWS Executive Director Bill Bulloch presented Horton with a plaque from Roosevelt Warm Springs.

Ending on a productive note, RWSIR and CSRC jointly presented their new collaboration and focus on providing services to their customers – both the counselor and the client - that are needed. It was clear that both the centers and VR clients will benefit from their client-centered approach and continuous feedback on effectiveness.

G VRA VR Program Managers, Directors and Counselor Coaches met on June 10 & 11, 2013 in Atlanta to hear a summary of the milestones and accomplishments made during our first year as a program within our new independent agency. Presentations were made by the GVRA Board of Directors Chairman, Jimmy DeFoor, Executive Director Greg Schmieg and Field Services Director Twyla Crump.

Kayla Wilson, VR Program customer and HSHT participant, sharing her experiences with the VR Program and to "Embrace Who You Are."

An insightful and delightful presentation was made by Ms. Kayla Wilson from Augusta, GA regarding her progress through school while learning to work with her disability and the support she received from parents, school, VR Program staff and the High School/High Tech program.

Elijah Carter, a new hire in the Statesboro office, was poignant in his description of his progress from VR Program customer to VR Program CRC counselor and his conviction that he is exactly where he wants to be. Mr. Carter described the impact his VR Counselor had in his life; that of finding a purpose which led to a passion. He sees VR and VR Counselors as making the

IN THE SPOTLIGHT: Fay Loggins

GVRA Board Member

In July, 2012 Governor Deal appointed Fay Loggins to the first Georgia Vocational Rehabilitation Services Board to help establish and lead the new GVRA. Fay brings a unique perspective to the Board as many years ago he received services from both the Vocational Rehabilitation (VR) Program and Roosevelt Warm Springs Institute for Rehabilitation (RWS). Fay had recently completed military duty when he was in a severe car accident that resulted in total blindness. His VR Counselor referred him to RWS where he lived for five months in 1965.

Fay noted that RWS taught him he could do many things, just differently, and that losing his sight was not the end of his life. After five months at RWS, Fay knew he had the potential to go to college and create a better life for himself. With VR assistance, Fay earned his Associates degree from Truett-McConnell, his Bachelor of Arts degree from Piedmont College, and his law degree from the University of Georgia (UGA) in 1971.

Fay chose not to study Braille in college, but instead found that recorded books and readers were more effective for him. Fay belonged to study groups throughout college that were very beneficial to all involved. An interesting VR connection is that Cleveland Unit Manager Ken Hise's wife, Lynn, went through four years of college with Fay. Fay said that he was fortunate to have Lynn as a reader for him in the study groups, and that he knew Lynn before Ken met her at Piedmont. Fay also met his own wife, Pat, while a student at Piedmont.

Fay was the first student who is blind to graduate from the UGA Law School. When he applied, the Dean of Admissions told Fay he admired his goals, but that the three previous individuals with low vision or blindness who had started law school all dropped out after the first quarter. Fay just smiled and said maybe he would be the first to graduate, and he actually did that faster than many other students. He went on to pass the State Bar on his first try. In May 1972, Fay practiced law in Columbus for the Georgia Indigent Legal Services. After one year, he and his wife, Pat, decided to return home to Gainesville where he established his law practice that he shares with his son today.

Among his many hobbies, Fay likes to take cars apart and rebuild them "to relieve tension". While his son was becoming an Eagle Scout, Fay worked alone over three months to rebuild an engine of the large van he had donated to the scout troop. Also, Fay has a 1955 Chevrolet show car and a 1968 Camaro Convertible that he and Pat enjoy riding through the Georgia mountains.

Fay said, "He did not know he would enjoy meeting folks on Board so much, and it is a privilege to serve with such a wonderful group of people." He looks forward to continuing to be a Board member and help lead GVRA to a bright future.

The Desk

Although I have always known the general definition of irony, I never really experienced it in my life until June 1998. I was then, as now, a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor in Georgia and transferred from Perry to Macon because it was closer to my home. On my first day in Macon, my supervisor, and a co-worker – once my VR counselor - Mike Harrell, showed me to my work area.

Mike had worked as a general counselor in the Macon Office since 1984 when he acquired his caseload from a retiring counselor, Howard Allen. At the time, Mike served Jones county in middle Georgia and inherited a nineteen-year-old kid in his first year of college – me. With Mike’s encouragement and assistance, and services from the Georgia Division of Rehabilitation Services, I graduated from Georgia College and began as a caseworker for the Division of Family and Children Services in 1989. In 1992 I was accepted as a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor in the Perry office, and remained there until my transfer in June 1998 to the same office in Macon where once I had been a client. My amazement at the circle of circumstances was just beginning.

As I was shown to my new work area, my supervisor noticed that my desk had two broken drawers. Someone mentioned that there was an old desk in an interview room which, although several years old, was better than the broken desk. When the desk from the interview room was carried in, Mike was standing next to me. Upon closer inspection of this new (old) desk he seemed stunned as he said, “You know what, Charles? I just realized that this is my old desk. I used this desk for years before I got the desk I’m using now.” He paused then said, “ And I used it when I first came to work here in Macon Office. Since I took over Howard Allen’s caseload and office, this would mean that this is Howard’s old desk.” We stood there in pensive amazement. The irony was too overwhelming for a second as we realized what this all meant. Once a nineteen-year-old kid sat on the client side of this desk, without a clue as to what he wanted to do with his life. He only knew that he had a disability, and his mother told him that Mr. Allen and the people at Vocational Rehabilitation would someday help him get a job. And now, I was a thirty-three old man, sitting on the other side of that same desk, counseling persons with disabilities, writing vocational plans, helping people plan their future.

God has a very interesting way of showing us he is watching out for us all and I, like most people, often have to be reminded of that in very apparent ways. When I think about how far I have come since I sat on the other side of that desk, I can’t help but be thankful to Him and to a lot of people. As Rehabilitation Specialists, we do make incredible differences in people’s lives. With my present position as a Certified Rehabilitation Counselor with the Georgia Department of Labor, I have not just a job, but a career. I know Vocational Rehabilitation has made a difference in my life.

EPILOGUE

In 2001, our Macon office caught fire and we had to move into a new building with new furniture, and the old desk appears headed for the salvage yard. That’s okay. Life and change are constants, but I can always look back in amazement that I was once served as a client from that desk, and then served from the desk as a counselor. The circle is now complete.

Cave Spring Students Participate in Deaf Awareness Day at KSU

Students and staff from Cave Spring attended Kennesaw State University's (KSU) Deaf Awareness Day on April 11th, 2013. The purpose of the event was to bring attention to deaf awareness and the services that are provided to the deaf and hard of hearing. Along with three staff members, students who are deaf/

hearing/ hard of hearing worked for several weeks to learn Lee Greenwood's song, "God Bless the USA". Throughout the day, they performed in sign language for Kennesaw State University students and visitors. During the visit, they enjoyed others experiencing their music whether it was through song or sign language.

In addition to KSU, students have visited the Veterans Hospital in Atlanta and performed for veterans. GVRA and the Cave Spring staff are very proud of the students for taking the opportunity to give back to the community by making a difference while feeling good about themselves at the same time.

She began her career at Northwest GA Regional Hospital in Rome. She transferred to Vocational Rehabilitation in 2006. Glennis lives with her husband in Silver Creek, GA. Glennis looks forward to enjoying her hobbies of music, especially piano, keeping up with friends and spending time with family during retirement.

VR Region 16 and Others Express Gratitude Toward Patti King

Sharon Angel:

On May 31, GVRA bids farewell, and salutes Mrs. Patricia King who has worked as the Operational Analysis Technician for the former Region 9 and currently the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Program. Affectionately called "Patty", is a woman who works extremely hard in ensuring that her audits and reviews of the Authorizations and Invoices (A & I) are accurately encumbered and meets business standards for payment processing. Patty takes her job seriously as she aids in processing thousands of A/I's on a daily basis which helps to put people with disabilities to work. Because of her tenacity and professional demeanor Patty is often asked to work on regional or state administrative assignments. She is known widely for her "state of the art" organizational skills and thorough note taking. Through the years she has provided training for the regional program assistants and has been a major contributor in her region for reducing the number of errors on A/I's. When Patty is not working long hard hours in the Dublin Regional office, she is home baking all kinds of sweet treats to bring into the office. She would often surprise us when attending a meeting by bringing in one of her famous cakes or pies. Meeting with her was always a welcoming opportunity to learn and expand your repertoire for cutting edge business operation standards. It was always an opportunity to be in the presence of one of the greatest cooks south of Macon.

Patti King was loved and admired by her colleagues and friends in VR

Patty is well respected and admired by her colleagues, staff and management. She is an excellent example of a virtuous woman and truly deserves to be celebrated for her contributions to the Georgia Vocational Rehabilitation Program and agency. Her presence will be greatly missed and shoes that cannot be filled as quickly. She takes with her a vast knowledge of experience; yet she leaves VR better prepared in becoming a standalone agency and to moving to the next level. "Give her the fruit of her hands, and let her own works praise her in the gates." Psalm 31:31

Sharla Howe:

Patty King embodies the spirit of GVRA. She has been a true champion to our agency and its mission to assist people with disabilities to work. It has been a privilege to have served on the team with such a remarkable woman. She had a great sense of humor especially when I needed to laugh to keep from crying. Her invaluable skills knowledge dedication and support is irreplaceable. Patty will be truly missed! Wishing you all the best in your retirement!

Raj Pagadala :

I have known Patty King since 2002 when I started with VR as a Rehab Technologist in Dublin. We worked in the same office for five years. Even after I moved to a position in the State Office, Patty and I always kept in touch. She is the most sincere VR employee I have known and is an even better person. Efficient people work smart and not hard. Patty on the other hand worked smarter and harder. She worked twice as hard and twice as efficiently as others. But more importantly she was the most caring friend one could ask for.

Maureen Porter:

There are not enough words to express how much Patty will be missed. She is truly a hard worker and she cares so much about her work and doing it right. Anytime any of us OATs needed a business memorandum or a website, we knew Patty would have what we needed. She is going to be sorely missed by all of the OATS. Patty was also one of the first to volunteer to back us up when we were out. A person of her caliber and integrity will be very hard to replace. She has also done so much for me personally. I consider her to be a very dear personal friend of mine and I will always cherish our VR memories.

Jan Greene:

Patty King has been an inspiration to me as an OAT. I've been working alongside her since 1998. She offered much assistance throughout the years which has helped me perform well in my position. She not only performed excellent in her field, she also became a good friend. I will miss her tremendously.

Team USA and Germany Train at Roosevelt Warm Springs

Two mighty women's wheelchair basketball teams met in friendly competition last month in the Ruzyccki Center for Therapeutic Recreation at Roosevelt Warm Springs.

Team USA under the leadership of new coach Stephanie Wheeler played a week-long series of training matches with Germany, the reigning women's wheelchair basketball Paralympic champions. The teams played a total of 10 games, with Germany winning all but one of the matches. According to Reenae White, RWS Camp Coordinator, team USA might have won more games if Team USA had not used the training camp to develop new players. The Germans brought their veteran players, those that had competed in the London Paralympics last year, she said, but the Team USA veteran players stayed away from the training camp to allow the newer players a chance to grow.

Team USA player Jen Poist looks to pass during a training game with Germany last month at Roosevelt Warm Springs.

Roosevelt Warm Springs has regularly hosted international wheelchair basketball competitions since the opening of the Ruzkcki Center in 1996.
